Weekly COMEX Gold Options Monitor1. Product Description

COMEX Gold options, just like the COMEX Gold futures, are a crucial instrument for gold traders, with total open interest in the gold options market even many times exceeding the size of the COMEX gold futures market.

Due the intrinsic nature of options, clusters of high open interest around certain strike prices may generate specific price expectation evolutions in the underlying assets; the COMEX gold futures.

Option plays moreover tend to become increasingly important as expiration of these contracts near, and can often lead to increased price volatility.

The Goldessential Weekly Gold Options Monitor comes forward to these issues by keeping a close eye on the expectation patterns that option plays generate, thereby analyzing flows in open interest and coining possible effects on prices in the underlying assets.

The publication can be a crucial tool for any trader with an exposure to both the gold futures and/or options market, as it highlights these price expectations and digs into the shifts of open interest, volumes and Greeks.

It may as well be very useful to traders looking to engage in option trading for speculative or hedging purposes.
